

ANTI BULLYING POLICY

Staff receive training on bullying and are aware of the correct procedures to carry out.

If early bullying behaviour is not addressed, patterns of violence and victimization may grow and persist, not only within the child care settings, but also into later childhood, adolescence, and even adulthood.

We will support children how to analyse and resolve social problems, understand and respond caringly to what others think and feel, and stand up for themselves in a fair and respectful way, without attacking others. We offer a natural learning environment and a potentially safe haven in which to teach and practice these social skills.
